

Congressman Rothman: IRS owes 9,000 New Jerseyans money

Congressman Steve Rothman urges his constituents who filed their 2007 tax returns but have not yet received their refund or economic stimulus checks to update their address with the Internal Revenue Service.

(Washington, DC)

— Congressman Steve Rothman (D-Fair Lawn) urges his constituents who filed their 2007 tax returns but have not yet received their refund or economic stimulus checks to update their address with the Internal Revenue Service (IRS). More than 9,000 New Jerseyans' checks were returned by the U.S. Postal Service this year due to mailing address errors.

“These checks, many of which were made available through the Economic Stimulus Package, passed by Congress back in January, have already been received by most New Jerseyans,” said Congressman Rothman. “However, over 279,000 Americans — 9,000 of them living in the Garden State — are rightly owed either stimulus or refund checks, but have not received their payment because of an incorrect address.”

Residents who did not receive their anticipated refund can use the Where's My Refund tool at www.irs.gov or call 1-800-829-1040 to check the status of their missing refund, initiate refund tracers and update their address.

Those who did not receive their anticipated economic stimulus payment can use Where's My Stimulus Payment at www.irs.gov or call 1-866-234-2942 to check on the status of the missing stimulus payment and update their addresses if necessary. Addresses must be updated by November 28, 2008, to ensure that the IRS can reissue the check.
