

Rothman Staffer Moves to White House

President Barack Obama has selected Congressman Steve Rothman's Deputy Chief of Staff/Legislative Director, Shelly Stoneman, to serve as a member of the White House legislative team.

President Barack Obama has selected Congressman Steve Rothman's Deputy Chief of Staff/Legislative Director, Shelly Stoneman, to serve as a member of the White House legislative team. Her office will be located in the East Wing. Stoneman has worked for Rothman since 2003 directing much of his work on the House Appropriations Committee. Rothman has secured over $1 billion for northern New Jersey through his work on this committee.

"I am very pleased that Shelly will be joining President Obama's staff and continuing to work on issues that benefit New Jersey, the nation and the world," said Rothman. "She is one of the smartest, hardest working people I have ever met. Her knowledge and experience working for New Jersey and its priorities will serve President Obama, his administration, and New Jersey very well, indeed."
