

Congressman Rothman Meets with Members of the National Legislative Council of the American Legion Department of New Jersey

(Washington, DC)

— On Tuesday, March 3, 2009, Congressman Steve Rothman met with members of the National Legislative Council of the American Legion Department of New Jersey. Rothman thanked the veterans for their service and their ongoing efforts to meet our nation's lifelong commitment to our veterans.

The National Legislative Council of the American Legion Department of New Jersey oversees 353 posts throughout the state. The American Legion was chartered by Congress in 1919 as an organization devoted to the protection and mutual interest of all war-time veterans. Today, it is a not-for-profit community-service organization with over 3 million members, men and women, spread across 15,000 American Legion posts worldwide.
