Student from Carlstadt Meets His Congressman

(Washington, DC)— On Thursday, September 28, 2006, Evram Dawd of Carlstadt, NJ, a junior at Don Bosco Preparatory High, met with Congressman Steve Rothman (D-NJ). Evram is President of the Amnesty International Chapter at his high school and used this opportunity to discuss human rights issues with Rep. Rothman. In particular, they both felt strongly that the United States should officially recognize the Armenian Genocide and agreed that the U.S. must support a United Nations peacekeeping force in Sudan.

Evram was in Washington, DC for the National Young Leaders Conference, during which high-achieving students meet with their lawmakers and participate in workshops to help them understand the responsibilities of leadership.
